AIMS & SCOPE

The Journal of Interprofessional Care disseminates research and new developments in the field of interprofessional education and practice. The Journal welcomes contributions containing an explicit interprofessional focus and involving a range of settings, professions, and fields. Areas of practice covered include primary, community and hospital care, health education and public health, and beyond health and social care into fields such as criminal justice and primary/elementary education. Papers introducing additional interprofessional views, for example, from a community development or environmental design perspective, are welcome. The Journal is disseminated globally and encourages submissions from around the world.

Journal of Interprofessional Care is published in association with CAIPE (Centre for the Advancement of Interprofessional Education). Find out more about CAIPE and member discounts to the journal at <http://caipe.org.uk/>.
